2024 Impact

Educator Tyanne Roland collaborated to organize, conduct and teach a multi-county beef school, two Rancher Feeding Youth elementary school workshops, six Living Rural classes and two district youth livestock field days. She taught two Mental Health First Aid classes for law enforcement and ISU physician's assistant students, resulting in over 50 participants receiving continuing education credits and over eight hours of class time.

4-H in Adams County

Afterschool enrichment activities included 18 healthy living classes focused on exercise. Five Zooming Through Animal Science classes were taught to local youth to increase their knowledge and skills. UI Extension, Adams County also joined the district Horse Camp Board and sent youth to the camp. Roland served on the Know Your Government State Steering Committee and county youth and adult volunteers attended.

On the Horizon

Upcoming programs include a resurgence of the Rangeland Skillathon program in fall 2025. The healthy living classes for youth are very successful and will continue. Master Gardener classes will be coming to Adams County in spring 2025. A youth food preservation club is starting using award winning Idaho written curriculum.
