We are always recruiting caring adults that are willing to take the time to work with youth. One of my favorite ways to look at volunteering in 4-H comes from a State Volunteer Association officer, Joe Stanley, who describes volunteering with 4-H as a “force multiplier”. To me this means, volunteers help increase our Canyon County 4-H team’s ability to reach more youth. We appreciate all of the people who have stepped up and are working to become volunteers. If you or someone you know is interested in becoming a volunteer, this article will help explain the process.

Becoming a new volunteer is a process, but the reason why we have a screening process is for youth protection. Certified, enrolled 4-H volunteers are able to work with a group of youth on their own. Those who are not certified and enrolled must have a certified and enrolled volunteer with them at all times.

The steps to becoming a certified volunteer are:

- ◆ Complete and return an application for a Volunteer Position in 4-H. This is available from the office.
- ◆ Provide 4 names with complete mailing addresses and e-mail addresses of personal references who are not relatives and who have knowledge of your skills when working with youth.
- ◆ Enroll in Zsuite.
- ◆ View the Idaho 4-H Volunteer Orientation Modules (housed in the Clover Academy in your Zsuite profile).
- ◆ View the University of Idaho Protecting Minors Training (housed in the Clover Academy in your Zsuite profile).
- ◆ Watch for an e-mail being sent from Sterling Volunteers seeking approval to run a background screening. Once Sterling has completed the background screening, a report will be sent to the 4-H Professional in your county.
- ◆ Complete a one on one interview with the 4-H professional in your county.
- ◆ Complete a 4-H New Volunteer Orientation.
- ◆ You will be notified in writing of your acceptance or non-acceptance as an Idaho 4-H Volunteer.

Another thing to remember is that every year, volunteers must re-enroll in ZSuite. Every three years, volunteers also need to retake UI Protecting Minors and update their background check.
